

Magda Sereda:

- Recently we did a survey of audiology services for patients with tinnitus and/or mild hearing loss
- Our survey showed that about half of healthcare professionals used different criteria to decide on hearing aid management for these patients
- We want to see if hearing aids can help tinnitus. We will look in to this by collecting evidence through a good quality research project.
- We hope this evidence will help healthcare professionals decide if they should give hearing aids to patients with tinnitus and/or mild hearing loss.
