

Paul Leighton:

- I work in the research design section of the National Institute for Health Research (NIHR)
- We work with researchers to help them set up research studies and get funding
- We have a team of health economists, medical statisticians, social science researchers and behavioural scientists
- Their skills and knowledge help the Unit to develop requests for funding.